In light of the bird flu coverage spreading its wings in the mainstream media, Dr. Brian Hooker, the chief scientific officer for Robert F. Kennedy’s Children’s Health Defense, told The New American’s Alex Newman, “I am not concerned at all,” commenting that human-to-human transmission of the virus would likely take a very long time to materialize without foul play and government-backed “gain-of-function” schemes.

Additionally, Hooker, who co-wrote the book Vax-Unvax: Let the Science Speak with RFK Jr., said that the upcoming World Health Organization (WHO) pandemic accord is related to the bird flu hysteria, warning of a “perpetual state of pandemics” that must be stopped by activated and educated citizens.

Ultimately, Hooker shared that the government is never the answer to health emergencies, saying, “We cannot really trust the CDC to do anything except for things that I think are duplicitous and nefarious.”
