Far-left Democrats in the U.S. House of Representatives used a resolution to honor slain conservative activist Charlie Kirk as the opportunity to sow more political hate and division.

Today, 58 Democrats voted against the resolution, while another 38 voted present. All Republicans present voted for the resolution.

Since Kirk's assassination at Utah Valley University on September 10, the hate-Kirk vitriol from anti-American leftists has led to firings, and, in the case of Democratic Representative Ilhan Omar of Minnesota, a resolution to remove her from committees that failed because of four renegade Republicans.
