

More Evidence of Government Agents' Involvement on January 6?

It looks more and more as if the events of January 6 were the work of a confederation of the enemies of freedom. It has already been well-reported and well-documented that Antifa played a roll in the storming of the Capitol. Now, more and more evidence is pointing to conspirators within the government itself.

The current resident of 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue claims that January 6 is the darkest day in American history. And — geriatric confusion and leftist slant duly noted — he is correct; even a blind squirrel finds an occasional nut. But he is not correct for the reason he claims. He is correct because the “Great Insurrection” of January 6 — which appears to have been planned and executed by leftist insiders — is being used as a pretense for the persecution of conservatives.

Besides the well-documented presence of Antifa and other leftists instigating and participating in the breach of the Capitol building on January 6, there is also sufficient evidence to indicate that the FBI may have had a hand in the orchestration and execution of that breach. As this writer covered in a previous article, court documents seem to point to the presence of FBI plants in the crowd that day. Those plants seem to have “worked the crowd,” going so far as to entrap others to break the law.

From that article:

For instance, one such “unindicted co-conspirator” is identified in government documents only as “Person 2.” The documents state that “Person 2” stayed in the same hotel room as a man named Thomas Caldwell who has been charged as an insurrectionist. The documents state that “Person 2” stormed the Capitol building on January 6. Caldwell was led to believe (it appears by “Person 2”) that his group storming the Capitol would be supported by a “quick reaction force” led by a man only identified in government documents as “Person 3.”

So, in this instance, three men were involved. Thomas Caldwell (a 65-year-old man), “Person 2,” and “Person 3.” Two out of three of them were never charged. Because it appears that two out of three of them were FBI plants who did the job of stirring up the so-called insurrection.

Lest this sound like a crazy tin-foil hat conspiracy theory, consider that the first attack on the World Trade Center in 1993 was an FBI sting that either went horribly wrong or horribly right, depending on the FBI’s true objective.

There are scores of cases of the federal government using plants to incite illegal activity and then coming down like a ton of Red, White, and Blue bricks on the targets. If this is another of those cases — which government documents appear to indicate — then the objective appears to be the discrediting of President Trump and anyone who supports him or his policies, as well as the affirming of the questionable election that allowed Joe Biden to put in a change of address form listing 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue as his new address.

Now, new evidence seems to support the idea that federal agents were involved.

Bobby Powell — who hosts a podcast entitled “The Truth Is Viral” — was at the Capitol on January 6. He videoed some of the events of that day and his video shows Capitol Police beginning to arrest a man who has just broken a window at the east entrance to the Capitol Building. Then, inexplicably, the police — appearing to receive orders via radio — not only release the man (identified in the video as Hunter Ehmke), but also leave the area, leaving the broken window undefended.

What follows next is telling: Men clad in what appears to be black military uniforms continue breaking out the window. A Trump supporter attempts to defend the breach, placing himself in the way. He is shoved out of the way and then clearly threatened by one of the black-clad men.

Powell was interviewed by OANN, and that interview includes several segments of video shot by Powell. In the interview, Powell said, “Two men I saw attacking the building, breaking windows, and even pushing people inside have not been arrested. And they are not on the list of suspects being sought by the FBI.” He added, “I provided the FBI with 29 minutes of high-definition footage, 1080p, more than five months ago. Neither one of these men has been arrested.”

Powell says he has checked the names and descriptions on the “400-plus indictments” and those men “are not listed in any” of them. He also said, “There’s not one frame of video, not one still photograph on either of these men on the FBI’s webpage that ask people to give them tips on who the rioters were. The FBI’s YouTube channel or their Facebook page. They’re putting up all kinds of fuzzy pictures, but they’re not putting up the HD images that I sent them.”

Powell did not only provide the video to the FBI. He also provided it to other agencies ostensibly investigating the “insurrection.” He told OANN:

I spoke with agents from the FBI, the JTTF, the Secret Service, and NCIS on January 15. I provided them each with a copy of the footage I recorded and a narrative of what I saw. To this day, nobody has called me to ask me for an interview. I told them that I would be happy to come in and tell them everything that I know. But the FBI does not want to talk to me. They may after this. Up to this point, they haven’t said a doggone word. They won’t even return my phone calls or emails.

Let’s boil that down to its broth, shall we? Powell was there and captured video of the beginning of the “darkest day in American history” — the day “armed insurrectionists” attempted (and nearly succeeded in) the “overthrow” of the United States government. His video shows — in high definition — who was doing what. He sent that video to the federal agencies hunting for those “insurrectionists.” And they have not used the 29 minutes of video he sent them. They won’t return his calls. They won’t even talk to him.

It's enough to make one wonder why that evidence does not interest them. Could it be because that video shows more of the FBI plants that seem to have been implicated in the report from revolver.com referenced in an article this writer published on June 16?

Another thing that lends credence to the possibility that agents within the federal government were behind the breaching of the Capitol is a strange phone call that Trump advisor and confidant Roger Stone says he received. Stone was interviewed by Alex Jones Sunday and addressed claims that he was involved in — perhaps even that he was the mastermind behind — the storming of the Capitol. (Video here — relevant portion starts at the 38-minute mark.) He denied it, saying, “Wasn’t there, didn’t know anything about it in advance, didn’t have any involvement whatsoever.”

And then he added, “When I was in my hotel room at the Willard, shortly after the President’s speech, there was a call from the secret service, offering to escort me to the head of the march and up to the Capitol which I declined.” Lest that appear to be a made-up kooky conspiracy theory, Stone offered this piece of information: “By the way two pastors, two reverend protestant ministers and a police officer overheard all of that. Those are called witnesses. So for those who say, oh that’s made up, no it’s not made up. It’s a fact.”

While none of this is conclusive, the preponderance of available evidence — the report by revolver.com, the video by Powell, and Stone’s claim that the Secret Service attempted to set him up to be front and center when the breach took place — seems to point to Deep State orchestration of the events of January 6 for the purpose of having a pretext for demonizing conservatives and stripping Americans of more and more of our God-given rights.
