Digital Privacy and Manipulating Your Vote

Mitchell Shaw, from the Enemy of the Surveillance State podcast, joins Dr. Duke to share some of his knowledge on digital privacy. He says that its not about whether you have secrets, but what information is worth protecting. Shaw gives a few tips on how to give yourself more privacy, starting with alternative search engines. Dr. Duke and Shaw also discuss Ed Snowden and ask whether he should be pardoned for telling the world about personal digital surveillance. Shaw brings attention to the manipulation of media, and how this can impact mail in votes.
