Carlson: Damning Documents on Bidens Go Missing

The Hunter Biden e-mail and influence-peddling scandal just got a lot more interesting.

Fox's Tucker Carlson divulged last night that someone appears to have intercepted and stolen incriminating documents about the Bidens that Carlson would have revealed on his program.

The "damning" documents were on the way to Los Angeles, where Carlson interviewed Hunter Biden's business partner, Tony Bobulinski. He revealed that Joe Biden was intimately familiar with his son's global business ventures, contrary to what the Democrat presidential candidate said last year.

But somehow and somewhere in transit, the papers vanished. The only evidence left behind was the envelope.

Not that it matters all that much. The e-mails from Hunter Biden's laptop, along with those published elsewhere, and the testimony from Bobulinski, show that Joe Biden not only knew about this son's planet-spanning business empire, but also met his son's contacts.

Docs Go Missing

Carlson detailed The Case of the Purloined Documents in a two-minute monologue.

"There's always a lot going on that we don't have time to get to on the air," he began, "but there is something specific going on behind the scenes we did feel we should tell you about."

Carlson said he and his team received a "a collection of confidential documents related to the Biden family" that "we believe they are authentic, they're real and they're damning."

The source for the papers contacted Carlson as he prepared to interview Bobulinski.

"We texted a producer in New York and asked him to send those documents to us in L.A.," he said:

And he did that, so Monday afternoon of this week, he shipped the documents overnight to California with a large national carrier, a brand-name company that we've used, you've used, countless times with never a single problem.

But lo and behold, the incriminating evidence never landed.

"Tuesday morning we received word from the shipping company that our package had been opened and the contents were missing," he explained. "The documents had disappeared."

The company traced the envelope until 3:44 a.m. Tuesday. "That's when an employee at a sorting facility in another state noticed that the package was opened and empty.”

Continued Carlson:

The company security team interviewed every one of its employees who touched the envelope we sent. They searched the plane, and the trucks that carried it, they went through the office in New York where our producer dropped that package off, they combed the entire cavernous sorting facility, they used pictures of what we had sent, so that searchers would know what to look for.

They went far and beyond, but they found nothing. Those documents have vanished.

As of tonight, the company has no idea and no working theory either about what happened to this trove of materials, documents that are directly relevant to the presidential campaign just six days from now.

What We Have Is Enough

Bad as that is, nothing more is needed to prove improprieties if not illegal activities on the Biden Mafia's part.

- E-mails from Hunter Biden's laptop and published in the New York Post reveal not only Hunter Biden's $30 million deal with Red China, but also a meeting in 2015 between an executive with Burisma Holdings and then-Vice President Joe Biden. The exec e-mailed Hunter Biden, a Burisma board member, for arranging the meeting. Though Biden's campaign denies such a meeting, it concedes Biden might have run into him “on the sidelines of some broader U.S.-Ukraine event.” In another e-mail from 2015, the exec sought Biden junior's help in quashing a corruption probe of the company. He got it in 2016 when then Vice President Joe Biden forced the country to fire the prosecutor who was investigating the energy company.
- A text message from the laptop revealed that Hunter Biden and other relatives split their income with Joe Biden.
- Bobulinski confirmed that “Big Guy” described in an equity-distribution plan for a Biden-China business deal was, indeed, Joe Biden. And in the hour-long interview with Carlson, Bobulinski detailed a meeting with Joe Biden in Los Angeles in 2017.
- E-mails published at Breitbart show another Biden-Red China connection. The Democrat presidential candidate's transition co-chair, Jeffrey Zients, hosted a tour of the White House for Chinese “entrepreneurs” in 2011. They also met with Vice President Biden. If Biden wins the election, the Chinese will have a reliable contact co-managing the transition team, and after that, if Zients takes a cabinet position, a high-level administration contact.

The import of the e-mails and Bobulinski's testimony is this: Joe Biden lied when he said he knew nothing of his son's globe-trotting business activities. Those ventures resulted in lucrative remuneration that would be impossible for someone with a record of major drug use and no experience in the energy business — unless that someone weren't blessed with the surname of a sitting vice president.
