Inside Deep State “Coup” in Romania: What it Means for US & Russia

There is an ongoing Deep State “coup” being perpetrated by globalists in Romania that has profound implications for the United States, Russia, and geopolitics, explains The New American magazine’s Alex Newman in this special episode of Behind The Deep State that features one of the nation’s top political leaders.

Călin Georgescu, who won the first round of the “annulled” Romanian presidential election, was detained by the Romanian regime along with other Romanian patriots in what many are calling a “Bolshevist coup d’état.” In reality, it appears that the establishment could not tolerate a patriotic, pro-family, pro-sovereignty, pro-peace populist leader in a nation that is part of the European Union and NATO.

Top political leader George Simion explains that the detained leader, who won the election with 22.95 percent of the vote in a close, multi-candidate race, was similar to Trump. Leading up to the election, Georgescu had gained a gargantuan social-media following — mainly on TikTok — amassing millions of views for his Romania-first politics.

Soon after the shocking win, the Romanian Constitutional Court, made up of politicians selected by the current leftist president, annulled the result, citing so-called Russian interference through media as the reason. The election has been rescheduled for May 2025. Now, on the day Georgescu was set to register to run for president for a second time, he was detained on the street and held hostage for hours.
