In this poignant interview, David Dobson shares the heartbreaking story of his 13-year-old son Ares, who passed away in a Covid hospital in 2021. Ares suffered from spinal muscular atrophy, and David believes that due to his condition, Ares was an easy target for government-mandated protocols. David recounts how hospital staff withheld food and water from his son for four days, a decision he believes contributed to Ares' death. Even his own otherwise-trusted doctor would not allow use of ivermectin. This powerful conversation sheds light on the influence of government protocols and the financial incentives hospitals receive for following them. It raises critical questions about hospital protocols and patient care.
