For three years, Americans have been subjected to the most corrupt, un-American, subversive, hostile, and globalist-minded administration in the history of the United States. It's clear to tens of millions of Americans that the radicals running the Biden administration are intentionally trying to destroy this country, the most blatant illustrations of that being its open-border policies and legal assaults on Texas whenever the state tries to implement security measures. All this prompts the question — have we reached the point of civil war?
