

North Korea Sends Missile Into Japan's Exclusive Economic Zone Ahead of Talks With U.S.

Both South Korea's military and Japan's coast guard announced on October 2 that North Korea had carried out a missile launch into Japan's Exclusive Economic Zone. South Korea's Joint Chiefs of Staff (JCS) said North Korea fired an unidentified projectile that morning from around Wonsan, in southeast Kangwon province, toward the sea to the east.

Japan's Coast Guard said in a statement North Korea had launched what appeared to be a missile and urged vessels to pay attention to further information and not to approach any debris.

Japan's top government spokesman, Chief Cabinet Secretary Yoshihide Suga, told the media that the missile appears to have fallen into Japan's Exclusive Economic Zone in the Sea of Japan. Suda also said that another missile launched a few minutes earlier fell outside of Japan's EEZ.

CNBC reported that the launch was North Korea's ninth since President Donald Trump and North Korean leader Kim Jong-un met at the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) between the two Koreas in June.

The launch also came just a day after North Korea announced that it would resume working-level talks with the United States on October 5, which could potentially break months of stalemate between the two nations.

A Wall Street Journal report said that the timing of Pyongyang's launch is a provocation with a message for Washington ahead of the resumption of working-level negotiations, quoting the opinion of Leif-Eric Easley, a professor at Ewha University in Seoul. "The timing of North Korea's tests is a statement that it is not being pressured into talks but intends to negotiate from a position of strength," Easley said.

In response to this latest launch, which was the first North Korean projectile to land in Japan's Exclusive Economic Zone since 2017, Japan's prime minister Shinzo Abe told reporters that North Korea's missile launch was in violation of a United Nations ban, and he would call a meeting of Japan's National Security Council. "We will coordinate closely with the U.S. and other nations," said Abe.

North Korea has conducted well over a hundred missile tests since its first such test in 1984. As of November 30, 2017, it had carried out 117 tests of strategic missiles. After testing only an unidentified "ultramodern tactical weapon" in 2018 that one source said "did not appear to violate the voluntary moratorium North Korea imposed on nuclear and long-range ballistic missile tests," Pyongyang resumed missile testing in 2019. In May, North Korea launched several short-range projectiles from the vicinity of Wonsan and two short-range ballistic missiles from the vicinity of Sinori.

Written by Warren Mass on October 2, 2019

Pyongyang launched several short-range ballistic missiles in July, four in August, and two short-range projectiles from Kaechon in September — shortly after proposing to resume denuclearization negotiations with the United States. This seems to set a pattern for the communist nation to precede talks with the United States with missile tests, validating professor Easley's opinion that the timing of the tests is a statement that the communist regime intends to negotiate from a position of strength.

Photo of launch of intermediate range missiles: Korean Central News Agency (North Korea)

Related articles:

What Does the U.S.-North Korean War of Words Really Mean?

Lindsey Graham Predicts 30 Percent Chance Trump Attacks N. Korea

United States Designates North Korea a "State Sponsor of Terrorism"

Neocon Lindsey Graham Calls For Bypassing the Constitution

N. Korea Tests Missile With Potential to Hit U.S.; Trump Calls for Additional Sanctions

United States Designates North Korea a "State Sponsor of Terrorism"

North Korea: Globalist Pawn?

North Korea Claims Successful Intercontinental Ballistic Missile Test

North Korea Tests Ballistic Missile Capable of Reaching U.S. Base on Guam

North Korea Threatens U.S. With "All Out War" and "Weekly Missile Tests"

As N. Korea Celebrates Anniversary of Military, S. Korea Is on Alert

North Korea Threatens to Attack U.S. Carrier Group; Detains U.S. Citizen

Russia Says Troop Movement Near North Korean Border Was Scheduled

North Korea Warns of Nuclear Retaliation at Any Sign of U.S. "Aggression"

North Korea Admits Missile Launches Were Test of Possible Strike Against U.S.Bases in Japan

North Korea Missile Test Draws Reactions From Trump, Abe, and UN

North Korea Claims to Test H-Bomb

North Korea Postures With Nuclear Warning, Movement of Missiles

Crisis in Korea Continues

North Korea Attacks South Korea

North Korea Prepares to Launch Missile

Lawmakers Blast UN for Handing U.S. Technology to North Korea, Iran

Warren Mass has served The New American since its launch in 1985 in several capacities, including marketing, editing, and writing. Since retiring from the staff several years ago, he has been a regular contributor to the magazine. Warren writes from Texas and can be reached at

Written by Warren Mass on October 2, 2019

wmass@thenewamerican.com

Subscribe to the New American

Get exclusive digital access to the most informative, non-partisan truthful news source for patriotic Americans!

Discover a refreshing blend of time-honored values, principles and insightful perspectives within the pages of "The New American" magazine. Delve into a world where tradition is the foundation, and exploration knows no bounds.

From politics and finance to foreign affairs, environment, culture, and technology, we bring you an unparalleled array of topics that matter most.

Subscribe

What's Included?

24 Issues Per Year
Optional Print Edition
Digital Edition Access
Exclusive Subscriber Content
Audio provided for all articles
Unlimited access to past issues
Coming Soon! Ad FREE
60-Day money back guarantee!
Cancel anytime.